"...I have come that they may have life, and have it to the full." John 10:10

Dear Friends,

I want to give a special thank you to those of you who go out of your way to refer your family and friends to us. It's truly humbling. My greatest thrill is to see people live a healthier more vital life. The capability of the human body to respond to Designed Clinical Nutrition is truly amazing. I know from Whom the healing comes and feel truly blessed to be involved in seeing sick people get well.

Isn't it wonderful to consider that your body can actually recover rather than the continual treatment of symptoms with drugs that are in and of themselves potentially dangerous to your health? Obviously, our bodies are designed for real health improvement rather than the management of symptoms.

Even before all the hubbub about the "health care crisis" began, there was already obvious need for a major change in the system. However, unless there is a fundamental shift in what we call "health care" we will continue in the downward spiral of poor health and increasing cost.

To effectually improve the health of the American people and reduce the staggering cost of a failed system, we must leave behind the antiquated system of treating symptoms with drugs and surgery and begin paying attention to prevention from an early age and health restoration and maintenance for those already in poor health.

My idea of prevention is certainly not the medical model of putting people on drugs to "change the numbers" and doing yearly physicals until something really bad goes wrong. Early detection with screenings is not prevention but merely a way of finding an existing problem that has gotten bad enough to require drugs or more extensive intervention like surgery.

I see prevention, of most health problems, beginning in the womb and carrying on throughout childhood and adult life. Prevention is ensuring that the mother eats the foods necessary to develop a healthy baby even before conception. It's feeding the child real food, hopefully beginning with breast milk. It's parents setting an example and teaching children that whole foods build healthy bodies and minds and that junk, fake foods destroy health and lead to a life of decreased energy, sickness and ultimately degenerative disease such as cancer, heart disease, diabetes, Alzheimer's, arthritis and more.

Doesn't it only make sense that this approach will automatically lead to a healthier nation and lowered healthcare costs? Bingo..."health care crisis" solved. Sure, this will take some time but, if we continue on the same path of symptom treatment, we will have another generation of Americans even sicker than their parents with even more crippling economic consequences than we are presently experiencing.

Think about it. Have you seen an improvement in the health of the American population in your lifetime or a steady decline? Have you seen at least a stabilization of health care costs or a continued staggering increase? I think the answers are obvious.

Isn't it time that we as individuals take personal responsibility for our own health. In the past 40 years, I have noticed something in common with many sick and hurting people. They want me to give them something to make them better. The idea that they need to do anything other than take a drug doesn't occur to them thanks to the business of medicine and the slick advertising from the drug manufacturers. It hasn't worked in the past and a reshuffling of the same system will not avert the crisis that we are experiencing in the state of health of this great nation. You are on the right path with Nutrition Response Testing.

It's Absolutely Amazing

I hope, when I am 100 years old and still practicing, that I never cease to be amazed at the capability of the human body to restore itself back to health. The longer I use this wonderful analytical technique called Nutrition Response Testing combined with Designed Clinical Nutrition, the more I am convinced that the body...your body can recover from most anything... given enough time.

I am also amazed at the number of people who have the notion that they should be able to recover from a lifetime of declining health within a few weeks. I know that many of you reading this find that notion ridiculous. However, there are those who are looking for that magic remedy that will make them well with no responsibility on their part. You, however, realize it takes time to get sick and it takes time to recover. Let's explore the reasons time is a necessary element in health restoration.

Sickness begins at the cellular level...you don't suddenly develop ill health, even though it may seem that way. What you are experiencing now, with your lack of health, is the accumulation of the effects of a lifetime of dietary and lifestyle habits and other environmental and genetic factors. In reality, it's amazing that you made it as long as you have before you started having health issues. What wonderful bodies God gave us that can survive the abuse we put them through.

Yet, now you are suffering from that lifetime accumulation and you've come to Women's Nutritional Health Center in the hopes of getting well. So, to help you on that journey back to health, let's review what I emphasized to you on your report of findings visit. Remember that visit after your initial exam during which you read your Report of Findings and agreed to do your part in getting well? Here's basically what we talked about.

It is absolutely amazing how effective this program is in reversing your decline in health, if you take control of your life and health by following these two simple rules:

1. Follow through with your Personalized Health Improvement Program. This basically means that you take your supplements as directed...don't skip doses. Are you doing that? And, make the dietary changes that we agree upon each week. Are you doing that?...VITAL!
2. Give it enough time! We are not using drugs to cover-up your symptoms. Drugs work fast but have no ability to restore health. Only your body can restore health given no interference and a steady supply of the basic building blocks to rebuild cells which are...real food.

I know it sounds too simple but, for most people, it really is that simple. Health is your body's natural state ...not sickness. If you give it what it needs and time, it will most likely recover from even many years of ill health. Now that's exciting!!

Give Credit Where Credit is Due

One of my sons was recently involved in a severe motorcycle accident. He suffered a major knee injury requiring surgery. His left arm is fractured just below the shoulder joint. There are two breaks in the pelvis, a crack in the sacrum and two broken ribs. In other words...he's all busted up.

If you could see the accident site and the motorcycle, you would see God's hand of mercy. He flew through the air 60 feet, missing a telephone pole by inches, before landing and eventually stopping 30 from that point in a deep ditch. By God's mercy a young man saw the accident and called 911.

The care that he received from the time the EMS got there through the surgery, recovery and his stay in the hospital were everything you would expect from highly trained professionals. Many thanks.

The purpose of me relating this story to you is that I know I am frequently negative about the medical profession. I AM NOT against medicine or surgery when necessary. I am against the treatment of everything with drugs and when that fails...surgery. I AM FOR giving human bodies the opportunity to heal by removing barriers and supporting recovery with proper nutrition. But, thank God, we have those that can put us back together or remove rotten parts so expertly when necessary

H1N1 and Other Money Makers

Did I say that? Yes, I did and I believe it 100 percent. If you want to know who benefited from the 2009 and 2010 flu “pandemics”, follow the money. Flu season is coming. Here’s some info.

A vaccine for the “swine flu” of 1976 (yes it has been around before) made billions for the drug manufacturers as did the H1N1 vaccines of 2009/10 and yet was only about 50% effective. That’s right; half the people that contracted the H1N1 virus WERE VACCINATED.

Just how safe are these vaccines that we are frightened into taking during flu season? Consider this. In a study done at the Mayo Clinic, it was found that children who received the flu shot had three times the risk of hospitalization as those who were not vaccinated. For children with asthma, there was actually a higher risk of hospitalization for the vaccinated than the non-vaccinated!

Not only does the flu vaccine result in more hospitalization of children, it simply does not work. In a recent study of 250,000 children between the ages of 23months and 6 years showed that “flu vaccine is no more effective than a placebo” (sugar pill).

The official stance of Women’s Nutritional Health Center is that a healthy body is capable of warding off the flu of any kind. If an individual succumbs to the flu, their body is capable of marshalling its defenses and recovering in short order as was experienced by many of our clients who rapidly recovered last year.

Here’s what to do at the very first sign of the flu or a cold or anytime you don’t feel well...GET YOUR SELF CHECKED ASAP. The quicker you get the proper immune support remedies in your system the faster you will respond. We had many cases last year that felt better the next day.

Whether or not you and your family vaccinate for the flu is a personal decision and I will support you in whatever you decide. Keep in mind that many flu shots contain mercury based preservatives. Please inform yourself. Start with Mercola.com and do a search for flu vaccines. Another resource is NVIC.org. That stands for National Vaccine Information Center. Be informed. Make up your own mind.

Most importantly...live a healthy lifestyle.

Missed Appointments... a touchy subject but it must be addressed. Believe it or not there are people who reserve time at WNHC and don’t show or call. So, here’s my viewpoint.

I believe that, by the time someone comes to WNHC for help, they are ready to get serious about getting better. In fact, I try to make it clear from the beginning that there are responsibilities that fall squarely on their shoulders. Two of those responsibilities are spelled out on page two above.

The third responsibility is to keep the schedule of reserved appointments. Properly monitoring changes to “Designed Clinical Nutrition” is vital. In the early stages of care, the program is built up as the “Fine Tuning” phase of care progresses and other layers are revealed. These must be addressed in a timely fashion or progress will slow or stop.

During the “Healing and Observation” phase of care, deeper levels of imbalance (read Peeling the Onion) need to be dealt with immediately otherwise progress will slow or stop. During this phase of care the program begins to shrink as the body no longer needs as much support and eventually rejects products because it no longer has need of those particular products. This also must be monitored.

Here’s the official stance of WNHC: *If one has reached the point of being serious about improving health and vitality, then they should consider their reserved appointments a priority and arrange their schedule accordingly. In other words,keep their reserved appointments. It’s worth the benefits gained.

Here are two other reasons to keep your reserved appointments. (#1) If you have an appointment reserved and miss that appointment, that time is not available to anyone else. And, (#2) don’t forget, as you agreed in the beginning, you will be charged for missed appointments without 24hrs notice.
